Visuality, Materiality, and Knowledge Production since the 16th Century

Over the past decades, art historians and historians of sciences have increasingly focused their attention on visual epistemology and epistemic images in different scientific areas. The aim of this interdisciplinary workshop is to examine practices of knowledge production since the 16th century, by focusing on their visibility and materiality. Our goal is to investigate how images, objects, and texts interact, and how these interplays shape the disciplines of art history, anthropology, and the natural sciences.

Organisation: Prof. Dr. Noémie Etienne, Dr. Sara Petrella, MA Claire Brizon

The keynote, roundtable, and book launch are open to the public. The doctoral session, working group and museum visit are upon registration.
