

Art after Fukushima

Imaginations of the Atomic Age in the Anthropocene

University of Bern, Mittelstrasse 43, room 324
December 13, 2024

[mv|ub]

MITTELBAUVEREINIGUNG
UNIVERSITÄT BERN

u<sup>b</sup>

b
UNIVERSITÄT
BERN

Art in the Atomic Age refers to the historical period, primarily spanning from the mid-20th century, marked by the advent of nuclear technology and the proliferation of atomic weapons at the end of World War II. The Atomic Age names a transformative era characterized by the use and threat of nuclear power, which had profound impacts on science, geopolitics, culture and history. Since the Fukushima nuclear accident, it became furthermore clear that the Atomic Age and the Anthropocene are interconnected concepts. Scholars, writers, and curators from different fields and backgrounds will discuss critical entanglements, raising questions on Fukushima as a paradigm of the Anthropocene. Looking back at immediate responses after March 11, 2011, and on 13 years of experiences and reflections “Post-Fukushima”, the workshop will address a set of interrelated questions: How are imaginations of the Atomic Age changing in the Anthropocene? How do works of art after Fukushima differ from those in the earlier Atomic Age (e.g. after Hiroshima/Nagasaki, after Chernobyl), especially in terms of testimonial images, the importance of victims, an aesthetics of ruins, and the impact of memorial culture? How is the transition to collective practices, the emphasis on collaboration, the sense for ‘more-than-human’ worlds (vegetal and animal life), to the growing awareness for local environmental and indigenous perspectives, and present and future scenarios connected to the broader, planetary discourse on (and against) the Anthropocene?

Concept & Organization: Toni Hildebrandt, Department of Modern and Contemporary Art History, Institute of Art History / Walter Benjamin Kolleg, University of Bern

PROGRAM

- 9.30 Welcome and Introduction by Toni Hildebrandt (Bern)
- 9.45 Gabrielle Decamous (Kyushu, video conference), Fukushima and Other Nuclear Disasters in the Arts
- 10.15 Kyoko Iwaki (Antwerp, video conference), Ghostly Realism: Matsubara Shuntarō and Atmospheric Subjects
- 10.45 Response by Vega Tescari (Mendrisio)
- 11.00 Discussion
- 11.15 Coffee break
- 11.45 Maria Stavrinaki (Lausanne), Bomb, Human Head: Remarks on a Post-atomic Pattern
- 12.15 Theresa Deichert (Heidelberg), Representing the Unreal: The Nuclear Uncanny in Masaharu Satō's Fukushima Trace
- 12.45 Response by Lilian Kroth (Fribourg)
- 13.00 Final discussion

Gabrielle Decamous (Kyushu University, via zoom) is a Professor in the Faculty of Languages and Cultures at Kyushu University in Fukuoka and the author of Invisible Colors: The Arts of the Atomic Age (Cambridge, Mass.: MIT Press, 2018)

Kyoko Iwaki (Antwerp) is an Assistant Professor of Theatre and Performance Studies at University of Antwerp and a specialist in Japanese and European contemporary performance, focusing on topics of catastrophes, ends, and ghosts

Maria Stavrinaki (Lausanne/Paris) is a Professor of Art History at University of Lausanne and the co-curator (with Julia Garimorth) of the exhibition L'Âge atomique: Les artistes à l'épreuve de l'histoire, Musée d'art moderne de Paris (October 11, 2024 – February 9, 2025).

Theresa Deichert (Heidelberg) recently defended her PhD dissertation “Nuclear Ecologies: Contemporary Japanese Art, (Non)human Collaborations and the 3.11. Disaster” at University of Heidelberg. She is also working as curator at Kunsthalle Giessen.